Stanbic Bank donated medical equipment to Chefunye Clinic in Tsholotsho, Bulawayo. Residents of the area were travelling long distances to access health services leading to limited access to immunization for children. Pregnant mothers had little access to antenatal care, postnatal care, education on family planning, growth monitoring and nutrition surveillance.

The clinic is located 100km south-west of Bulawayo with an estimated population of 8340 people with approximately 1259 being children under five years.

Stanbic Bank's donation of medical equipment enabled the clinic to start operations. The clinic was officially opened to the community on the 15th of August.
